With this year marking quite the milestone for the Antiques & Garden Show of Nashville—now in its 35th edition—the popular event boasts an impressive lineup of experiences. Besides the showcase of 150 antique, art and horticulture dealers from around the world, the event also includes special programming like an immersive garden showcase, live music, a lecture series and the opening night Preview Party.

The event director, Amy Albright, shares that the mission of the show, “is to raise funds for our two very deserving Nashville charities, Cheekwood and ECON Charities, while also inspiring and bringing beauty and joy to all who attend. I [feel] the show has something for everyone to walk away with, whether a small trinket or a stunning masterpiece. My hope is that everyone that walks through the door feels inspired, and finds something that brings beauty and joy to their space.”

Informing the overall look and feel of the weekend event, is the theme “Cultivating Home: Life Well Tended,” which also draws from the signature fabric patterns by partners Fabricut, Jean Monro and Clarence House. The fabric features greens and warm tones with a heavy emphasis on garden imagery.

This year’s event will also have several exciting surprises, with some that are kept until the event opening.

“The show floor will have three spectacular garden showcases presented by accomplished landscape designers, in which attendees are invited to walk through and experience interactively,” Albright adds. Also, kicking off the lecture series, is a conversation with design enthusiast and actress, model author, Brooke Shields; and a special appearance by singer, songwriter Sheryl Crow and author and philanthropist Lauren Akins, alongside their shared interior designer April Tomlin.

Attendees will find engaging vendors like Camilla Dietz Bergeron LTD, Sherwood Antiques, Kim Faison Antiques, Stanford Fine Art, Creekside Antiques, Brenner Valdez, C. M. Leonard Antiques and Maison & Co., and so much more.

This ticketed event is held at Nashville’s Music City Center from January 31 through February 2. The Preview Party will kick everything off on January 30, from 6:30 to 9 p.m. ■
